1. Employee Data

Here you will find personal information such as B. Date of birth, tax characteristics and social security information.

2. Overview of working and vacation time

Information on attendance and absence times as well as vacation days can be found here.

3. Address field

Here is the address of the wage recipient as well as the name and address of his employer, the personnel number and, if applicable, the department number.

4. Billing Notes

Additional values can appear here, e.g. B. weekly working time, cost center, hourly wage. In addition, further information can also be output here, such as interruptions, e.g. B. in case of illness, parental leave.

5. Gross earnings

Here you will find information on how the monthly payments are made up, e.g. B. from hourly wages, holiday wages, vacation wages and vacation pay. These salary components each contain a reference to tax and social security obligations.

Marked with "" there can be further information from the payroll office.

6. Tax/Social Security

Here you can see the statutory deductions.

7. Net Earnings/Net Deductions

The amounts listed here reduce or increase the calculated net earnings. This then results in the payout amount.

8. Withdrawal Amount

Here you will find the amount that will be paid out or transferred in the current month.

9. Bank Details

This field can contain the bank details to which the payment amount will be transferred.

10. Employer's Total Costs

At this point, the payroll office can decide whether the total costs for the employer should be shown. These include the gross salary of the employee and ancillary wage costs, such as e.g. B. the employer's contribution to social security.

11. Statement of Merit

Here you will find an overview of the accumulated gross values and statutory deductions from the current employment relationship.

12. Footer

At this point you will find explanations of the abbreviations in the form as well as the mandatory information required by law. The footer of the statement therefore also contains the indication that this statement was drawn up in accordance with Section 108 (3) of the Trade Regulations Act.
